EXAMINATIONS AND CERTIFICATIONS.

At the end of the term of seventeen weeks, a series of questions on each course, prepared by Professor Seymour Eaton, will be published in the Virginian-Pilot, and blanks containing the questions will be furnished every subscriber making application for same. Two weeks will be allowed after the courses close, for the receipt of examination papers containing answers.

These papers will be referred to a Board of Examiners, who will assist Professor Eaton, and as soon as the work of examination is complete, the result will be reported, and certificates issued to the students entitled to them.

Remarks of a highly instructive character were made by Mr. Pentress. The whole affair was a decided success, receiving the well merited applause of all who witnessed it. About thirty pupils participated in the exercises.

COURT DECISIONS.

Notes of Cases Recently Decided, Which are of Interest to Our People.

DIGESTED BY W. B. MARTIN, (Exclusively for Virginian-Pilot.)

CULBERTH V. SMITH.

Supreme Court of North Carolina. March 28, 1899.

A COURT MAY ALTER A JUDGMENT DURING THE TERM AT WHICH IT WAS RENDERED. AN EXECUTOR IS NOT GUILTY OF FRAUDULENT MISAPPLICATION OF TESTATRIX FUNDS BECAUSE HE FAILS TO PAY A NOTE HE MADE TO TESTATRIX IN HER LIFETIME.

This was an action to recover from an executor a balance claimed due by him in the settlement of testatrix estate. Said balance was the amount he owed on a note executed by him to testatrix during her lifetime, and which he had failed to pay. There was a judgment by default that he had fraudulently misapplied the funds of the estate to his own use. Subsequently at the same time the court amended the judgment and struck out the part relating to a misapplication of the funds, etc., and plaintiff appealed. The court says:

His honor clearly had the power to alter or amend the judgment during the term at which it was rendered. The only question then is, was the judgment such a judgment as the plaintiff was entitled to upon the complaint? We are of the opinion that it was. The complaint, it is true, alleged that the defendant had fraudulently misapplied a part of the assets of the estate. But the final account was made a part of the complaint, and upon its face it appears that the funds alleged to be misapplied and converted by the defendant were a balance due upon a note executed by the defendant himself to the testatrix in her lifetime. If the defendant had collected the note of some other person, belonging to the estate, or had used it for himself, by assignment or hypothecation, and had been charged in the complaint with a fraudulent misapplication and conversion, and had put in no answer to the charge, then upon judgment by default, it would have been proper to adjudge the defendant guilty of conversion. Affirmed.

NAT. BANK V. FURTICK.

Court of Errors and Appeals of Delaware.

GARNISHMENT WILL NOT LIE AGAINST A NON-RESIDENT TO SEIZE A DEBT PAYABLE IN ANOTHER STATE.

This was a suit by a Bank in Wilmington against Furtick, who was a resident of South Carolina to recover a debt due plaintiff by defendant. A garnishment was issued and served on an agent in Delaware of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company, a corporation of Great Britain having agents in Delaware and South Carolina and elsewhere. The insurance company was indebted to Furtick for insurance on his goods in South Carolina, which were insured there and were burned, and it was sought by this garnishment to subject this debt of the company to Furtick to pay the debt of Furtick to the Delaware Bank. There was no personal service of the writ on Furtick.

The court says:

The second reason assigned why the attachment should be vacated was that the debt, under the facts of the case, was not the subject of attachment. Garnishment, as in this case, is a form of attachment. To subject the property or credit to attachment and thus confer jurisdiction, it must be within the jurisdiction, so that the court may obtain legal control of the res, otherwise it could make no legal disposition of it, because it is an axiomatic principle of law that the courts cannot change rights of property situate without the State. A large majority of the States have followed the principle that, for purposes of jurisdiction in attachment proceedings, the situs of a debt is at the domicile of the creditor, unless otherwise stipulated. An exception to this rule appears to be where the garnishee is a resident of the State where the proceedings are instituted, and is under the exclusive jurisdiction of that State; and possibly another exception is where a foreign corporation is doing business in a State, and the debt arose in respect to such business, and where the corporation submits or subjects itself to the law of the State in the same manner and to the same extent in respect to such business as it would be bound to were it a corporation created by the State. We avoid expressing an opinion upon these cases. The proceeding here is not based upon any cause of action that originated in this State, nor to enforce any contract entered into with any of its citizens, or in reference to any subject matter within the State. It is a case of a non-resident defendant and a non-resident garnishee. True, the garnishee is a corporation doing business in this State, but the debt due the defendant arose from its contract for insurance made through its agency in South Carolina, with the defendant, a citizen of that State, and concerning property situate there, and was payable there under the custom of the company; and it was payable there in accordance with the principle of law that in the absence of a place fixed by the contract, a debt is payable at the domicile of the creditor, and is not such a credit or property within this State as will confer jurisdiction on this proceeding. To take any other view would be to hold that it existed, had a situs, and was liable to attachment in every State in this Union where the defendant happened to have an office upon whom process could be served, as a condition precedent to its being permitted to do business in such State. It is therefore considered by the court that the attachment should be vacated.

MISCHIANZA CELEBRATION

held myself subject to the commands of the Board to do whatever I can to further the interests of the Carnival in October, which I presume is the matter they propose to take up. I don't think a particularly propitious time for Norfolk to take up this matter. By going to work now and co-operating with Mr. Mariner in connection with the fair to be held at that time, I believe we can make both the carnival and the fair an entire success.

Yours very truly,

R. L. WILLIAMS.

MR. MCKEAN SPEAKS.

Mr. McKean was then asked to take the floor and give his ideas of an annual celebration for Norfolk and the methods that his experience would suggest to make it a success.

He spoke at length, offering many valuable suggestions as to what to have, how to draw the crowds to Norfolk and how to make their presence here of the greatest value to our local business houses.

He advocated having a program composed of a few number of first-class attractions, rather than a lengthy program filled with mediocre features. He also advocated having the main attractions in the afternoon of each day, leaving the mornings free for the arrival of visitors from outside points and for the crowds to visit the stores and trade.

DISCOUNT SALES.

It was also proposed to have a committee call on our business houses in all lines of trade and arrange for them to offer special discounts on goods sold to visitors during the duration of the carnival. This feature would be largely advertised and these discounts ought to be a great inducement in bringing thousands of people to the city to take advantage of the bargains offered. Special railroad passenger rates would also tend to attract the people.

BIG TRADES PARADE.

A feature of the proposed carnival, and one that is always a winner, is a big first-class trades parade. This would attract the participation of local business houses generally and also, in some instances, the presence here of beautiful floats, sent on by advertisers of national reputation. It was stated that there are a large number of heavy advertisers who have beautiful floats and it is estimated that perhaps forty or fifty of these could be secured for Norfolk's Mischianza.

BICYCLE PARADE.

The matter of a bicycle parade was suggested, and it was looked upon very favorably by the members present. Such a feature could be arranged at practically no expense. A large number of participants could be secured by the offer of a number of merchandise prizes contributed by merchants of Norfolk. Such a parade at night could be made particularly beautiful, as the bicycle lends itself most readily to beautiful decorations and lantern effects.

A YACHT RACE.

Another new feature discussed was a yacht race, or series of races, open to all the boats of this section. For this a trophy would be offered, to be owned by the winner, or be held by the victor and defended by him at the next annual Mischianza celebration.

TO MEET TO-DAY.

After considerable general discussion of attractive features, co-operation of transportation companies, methods of advertising expense and general good results of a successful carnival in advertising Norfolk and increasing our trade, a committee was chosen to meet to-day at 1 p. m.

This committee consists of Messrs. C. Brooks Johnston, Colonel Nash, T. H. Synon and J. W. Perry. These gentlemen will meet at the hour stated at Mayor Johnston's office to further discuss preliminary details and report at a called meeting.

The ceremony of ordination to the priesthood in the Protestant Episcopal Church was solemnized at Christ Church Monday morning at 10 o'clock, a large congregation being present to witness the impressive services.

The candidate for ordination was the Rev. John H. Dickenson, assistant rector of Christ Church.

The morning prayer service was read by Rev. J. B. Dunn, of St. Paul's Church, Suffolk.

The epistles from the gospels were read by Rev. A. S. Lloyd, of St. Luke's Church, Norfolk.

The ordination sermon was preached by Rev. C. B. Bryan, of St. John's Church, Hampton, his subject being "The Stewardship of God's Ministry."
